Connecting the country

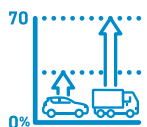

National Highways manages and improves England's 4,500 miles of motorways and major A-roads that make up the strategic road network. This network plays a vital role in everyday life and is crucial to the UK economy. It connects regions, families and friends. It supports local and regional growth and it enables businesses to deliver goods nationally and globally.

We're an arms-length government body, receiving our strategic direction and funding from the Department for Transport. We deliver the government's road investment strategies over five-year funding periods.

Everything we do, from designing our roads to clearing incidents, helps keep traffic moving safely 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Carrying 4 million vehicles every day

34% of all traffic and 70% of all freight travels on our network

Road safety

Road safety is, and will always be, our number one priority. Our roads are some of the safest in the world, but our ambition remains that no-one should be harmed while travelling or working on our network.

Economy

The strategic road network is the backbone of the British economy and a crucial piece of national infrastructure. It enables the movement of people, public transport and goods. It supports job creation, economic growth, and connects regions and cities.

Environment

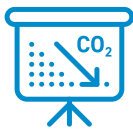

We recognise that a thriving environment underpins our economy, livelihoods and wellbeing. It's essential that we carry out our responsibilities in an environmentally sustainable way. We're committed to reducing our carbon footprint and enhancing nature and the health and well being of communities.

Sectors heavily reliant on our roads employ 7.6 million people and contribute £410bn to the UK economy

Between 2020-2025 our work and investment supported over 64,000 construction jobs

We aim to be net zero by 2030 for our own operations and by 2040 for road construction and maintenance

By 2050, all travel on our network will be net zero

Working with you

As a Member of Parliament, we want to work with you and your office to ensure we are delivering for your constituents. With a major office in each region, we are well placed to ensure our network supports regional economies and priorities.

Our commitments to you:

- We'll help you resolve casework relating to our road network – please write to us at parliament@nationalhighways.co.uk.
- We'll host parliamentary surgeries every six months, where you can meet our regional leaders and discuss matters with us.
- We'll work with you on broader issues such as improving road safety and enabling regional growth and development.
- We'll share details of our campaigns with you and provide materials you can share with constituents.
- We'll keep you informed when we are doing work in your constituency and we will listen to your views.
